Certificate Course in Social Counselling

The "Social Counseling Certificate Course" has been very successfully planned and implemented through the Department of Sociology at the College of B.B.S. Arts, Science College Balsur. In the year 2018-19, 30 students were admitted for this course. Out of them 19 students have passed with more than 70 percent marks. While 08 students have passed with more than 60 percent marks, only three students have got less than 60 marks.

Social problems are changing very fast in the present times. Mental stress is caused by the modern lifestyle, the excesses of individualism, and strong ambitions. This mental stress has led to increasing marital conflict, conflict between two generations, suicide, divorce, loneliness, mobile and TV addiction and depression. Making laws alone will not solve these problems. So it is only natural to go to the root of the problem and find the cause. Therefore, social counseling is useful to solve these problems at individual and collective level. In this connection, this course is being run in our college through the Department of Sociology.

To run this course properly, Dr. S. D. Yadav Madam, the principal of the college, proved to be a source of inspiration and valuable help. At the same time, Professor Gurunath Patil, Prof. Krushnath Bansode, Prof. Mahesh Kamble from Madhavrao Patil Murum and Dr. Dastgir Pathan from Shrikrishna Mahavidyalaya Gunjoti and Prof. Virbhadr Swami B. C. College, Omerga have been instrumental in making this course a success by guiding the students from time to time.

Objectives of the Course :-

The course provides an introduction to basic human rights philosophy, principles, instruments and institutions, and also an overview of current Issues and debates in the field with focus on the problems specific to India. This course aims to explore some aspects of the diverse and increasingly complex body of international law of human rights that has both national and international application. The course also seeks to analyze the ways in which allegations of human rights violations are dealt with in the Indian courts and the impact of human rights discourse on international politics and relations.

Structure of the course:-

The course is divided into three parts, as follows:

I )The first part introduces the conceptual foundations of rights from a historical and philosophical perspective. The focus is not only on the Indian human rights tradition, but on other sources of human rights, and several alternative philosophical perspectives to human rights, are considered. Also discussed is the concept of "constitutionalism", and its commitment to individual rights and bills of rights as supreme law.

2)The second part covers the International Human Rights movement beginning with its historical origins and examining the key international declarations, agreements and instruments. Our main concern are the means by which human rights norms are implemented and applied by national and international organizations, courts, and other treaty and political bodies. Also covered are economic and social rights, regional human rights systems and the national system for human rights protection.

3) The third part considers selected human rights issues under international and national law. The focus here is on the particular rights that are topical and burning for the Indian society, as well as for the European Union. The issues raised in all parts of the course will be analysed in a comparative mode using (1) the standards developed in international human rights law, and (2) the Indian standards, (3) the practices of various States under their domestic and constitutional systems and (4) the Indian regime.

The class will also explore the position of the Indian Constitution in the system of rights protection, its legal and political significance, as well as the issues of human rights protection and promotion by the local legislative and law enforcement institutions. A further aim is students to learn to relate the universal rights concept, guaranteed by international institutions, to individual rights, established by the Indian Constitution and protected (or not) by the state.

Educational objectives of the course:

Upon completing this course, students should:

- understand the key historical, political, legal and moral influences that have shaped the idea of "human rights" and be able to explain the concept of a right, and to analyze the contemporary challenges and trends in human rights theory and practice and to understand the general affinities and divergences in sources, substance and application of rights in international, regional, constitutional and domestic contexts;

- identify the major international declarations, treaties, and covenants governing human rights, and identify mechanisms for monitoring and enforcing human rights standards, they should also have a strong working knowledge of the major human rights conventions, processes and techniques and be able to identify and use the human rights instruments India is a party to and apply those mechanisms in concrete situations;

- know how to research, and where to find, human rights materials and relevant issues that will be necessary to future work in the field, and how to construct and advocate effective legal and policy arguments using International human rights norms and discourse;
